WORD "AND" SAVES MILK MEN

's Insertion in Ordinance Instead of "Or" Prevents Fine.

SO THE LAW MUST BE REVISED

As it is it Lets Impure Cream Cases Fall Through Without Prosecution and Correction of Faults.

One small word in a city ordinance caused Police Judge Crawford to discharge two impure cream cases in police court Friday morning. The word was "and." If it had been "or," the milkmen might have been fined.

As a result of the discovery of the present wording of the ordinance, City Prosecutor Daniel will endeavor to have it revised to conform to the original intention of the law, which only assumed its present wording by accident when it was changed and improved some time ago.

According to the present wording of the ordinance, the kind of cream that is prohibited from sale is that which any foreign substance has been added and containing less than 10 per cent butter fat. Therefore, if a sample of cream happens to be below the standard, but is naturally so and has not been adulterated, selling it unknowingly is not an offense.

According to the former ordinance, if the cream either had been mixed with a foreign substance or did not have the necessary amount of butter fat, it was prohibited from sale. The replacing of the word "or" where "and" now is, would change the ordinance to agree with the original intention and suit the officials of the milk inspector's office and the police court.

Demonstrating how he determined the percentage of various constituents in milk by figuring out the process on Judge Crawford's bench in the presence of a number of attorneys and milkmen, Prof. Charles F. Crowley, city chemist, delivered the court proceedings during the hearings of the milk cases Friday morning. Before the cases were discharged, Judge Crawford was glibly talking specific gravities, analytical methods and percentages of solids, fats and liquids as an expert chemist would do so.

J. M. Jensen of Forty-second and Martha streets and L. Larsen of Twenty-eighth and Locust streets, East Omaha, were the milkmen in court. Larsen was represented by Parry & Baird. The cases against them were discharged, as it was decided that under the present ordinance they had committed no offense.

Peter Bouse

is Paralyzed

Stricken During the Night and Found Unconscious in His Bed in Morning.

Peter Bouse, the veteran member of the Merchants hotel staff, is seriously sick at his home, 612 South Sixteenth street.

Mr. Bouse was at his work Thursday and went home at the usual time in the evening. Friday morning when the attendant in charge of his room went to look after it he found the door locked. He gained entrance and found Mr. Bouse in bed and unconscious. Quickly he notified the hotel and physicians were summoned. Steve Miller, night clerk at the Merchants, hastened to Mr. Bouse's room.

It was found that while he slept Mr. Bouse had been stricken with paralysis, leaving him in an uncertain state.

Only a few months ago, Mrs. Bouse died and Mr. Bouse buried her in Minneapolis. His brother, Nick Bouse, one of the veterans of the St. Paul police force, is also seriously ill.

One side of Mr. Bouse's body is completely paralyzed and the doctors are unable to arouse him from his stupor, so that little hope is held out for his recovery. Mr. Bouse was well liked and has a host of friends all over the western country.

ROLLER SKATE SPEEDWAY HALF MILE IN LENGTH

Track Provided by Residents of Benson Knocks Rinks in the Head.

As for getting patronage from roller skaters in West Omaha, all the public rinks might just as well close down, as residents of Benson have just completed a "rink," or roller skate speedway, 2,600 feet in length.

The sidewalk which makes this speedway possible is close Hill avenue, west of the country club, and besides having the finest kind of a rink in Omaha, the people of Benson and West Omaha have the benefit of the open air and scenery.

This long walk, perfectly uniform, was made possible by the property owners co-operating and the city letting contracts for crossings to the same contractors who built the walks.

As the neighborhood is far from being thickly settled, the walks are not crowded with pedestrians and the young people have taken advantage of the opportunity. There are no restrictions on speed and no admissions or skate rentals charged.

EASY PICKING FOR CROOKS

Waterloo, Ia., Citizen Falls for One of the Very Ancient Tricks.

Henry Pape of Waterloo, Ia., has decided that he will not loan money to his prospective employers when he is offered positions in the future. Thursday evening he was under the impression that he had been hired by several men and would leave the city with them on a night train. After he had stood guard over a traveling man's grips for some time after first loaning $20 to his new employers with which to buy the tickets, he woke up to the fact that maybe the men were confidence artists. He told the police about it and they have the descriptions of the "employers."

JUDGE FLAYS A PRISONER

Crawford Lashes Man from the Bench and Then Sentences Him.

CALLS HIM SEVERAL PET NAMES

Says it is an outrage for City to Be Subjected to Conduct of Such Roughnecks as George Rigby.

"Roughneck," "terrorist," "outrager," "lawbreaker" were some of the epithets applied to George Rigby of Thirtieth and Grand avenue, by Police Judge Crawford, when the former was tried in court Friday morning for having been drunk and disorderly.

To show that he meant it, the judge sentenced Rigby to serve ninety days in the county jail and fixing his appeal bond at $50. It is one of the heaviest sentences ever given for that offense.

Rigby is said by the police to be an ex-convict and a troublesome character. He has been arrested and tried in police court several times before, according to the records.

"We are going to start a fight right now to see if the law can be enforced in Omaha," vigorously declared Judge Crawford when the case was submitted to him after the hearing. "It's an outrage for this city to be subjected to the conduct of such a roughneck. He has been terrorizing people ever since I've been on the bench."

That even Rigby's attorney did not have much faith in his client or his case, was shown by the fact that Rigby was not placed on the stand and no evidence for him was offered. The case will be appealed on account of the heavy sentence for the common charge of drunk and disorderly, provided that the necessary bond can be furnished. Rigby's brother says that a bond of $500 may not be within their reach.

Rigby lives with his widowed mother, who conducts a small store in the north part of the city, near Fort Omaha.

Before being arrested Wednesday night by Detectives Ferris and Dunn, the man threw a brick through a window at the home of Mrs. Floods, with whom he once went to school and who has been made the object of his abuse for some time, according to her own testimony. She lives at 1820 Paul street.

Rigby also hired a horse and buggy from the Palace livery stables and abused the animal and wrecked the buggy while drunk that night.

When testimony to that effect was offered in police court Friday morning, he sat smiling enjoying the hearing and did not sober down until the judge pronounced sentence.

The home of Dr. C. T. Richardson, 2027 Chicago street, was entered through a window and $1 removed from the doctor's trousers pocket. As the thief was leaving the place, the policeman saw him and the chase began. Two shots were fired and the neighbors awoke, but the burglar got away. The police have his description and all officers have been instructed to arrest suspects.
